Barnyard Bingo

How much do you know about farm animals? Shade in the boxes that contain true statements. If you get them all right, you'll have 12 shaded boxes and three bingos!

Pigs are very messy animals.	Chickens are afraid of everything.	Pigs have a poor sense of smell.	Cows prefer to live alone.	A pig's squeal can be as loud as an airplane taking off.
Female chickens, called hens, are brave mothers.	Pigs are even smarter than dogs.	Rhode Island's official state bird is a chicken.	Cows and sheep can remember things for 3 years.	Chickens like to roost in trees at nighttime.
Male cows are called stallions.	A bunch of cows is called a cowch.		Baby pigs are called piggles.	Pigs won't stop eating, even if they're full.
Some chickens give birth to babies instead of laying eggs.	Chickens love to explore new places and things.	A male chicken is called a chickhim.	A pig can swallow something bigger than his head.	Baby chickens are called chicklets.
Cows give more milk when listening to their favorite music.	Pigs can't sweat, so they cool off in mud and water.	Mother hens "talk" to their eggs.	Cows can eat 100 pounds of grass a day.	Chickens have more bones in their neck than a giraffe.

Bonus: Look at the false statements. Can you rewrite them so that they're true?
